How Statewide Adjustment's public adjusters can help you:

It's very important that an insured understands a public adjuster works for the property owner, not the insurance company. The highly stressful period following a loss is a difficult time for individuals and businesses. A public adjuster can take those major headaches away and let you get back to your normal life. A typical fire or flood policy contains hundreds of provisions and stipulations, constantly changing forms, endorsements, exclusions and many complex details such as inventory appraisals and real estate evaluations that are required in case of a loss. Most policyholders do not know that the burden of proof is theirs. Public adjusters know the insurance business and are familiar with all procedures so they can work quickly to expedite payments.

At Statewide Adjustment we view the business of public adjusting as a crucial interest of the policyholder. With decades of various insurance experiences you can be assured all scenarios are familiar to us. From the personal commitment of our principals to the involvement of each of our specialized loss valuation experts, we believe no other public adjusting firm can offer such a high-caliber of service and results.

Should a disaster or loss ever occur, we're the professionals the insured can count on to deliver the full measure of compensation to which they are entitled.

Insurance companies have their adjusters working hard to protect their interests, and so should you!

You should not have one person, employed by an insurance company, making financial decisions on your behalf, you should have Statewide Adjustment. Armed with knowledge of insurance policies, state statutes, and the realistic dollar figures needed to get you back to pre-loss conditions, our team of public adjusters is just a phone call away.

When disaster strikes and your property suffered a loss it is your, the policyholder's, duty to document the damage and prove the entire loss to the insurance company. For most people, preparing the documentation and negotiating with the insurance company, without the help of their own public insurance adjuster, is an unfamiliar task. With forms and policies written in complex language, and filled with industry specific jargon, the process can seem endless and daunting. This is especially true when you have your hands full just trying to get your life back together following a disaster. This is where hiring a professional public insurance adjuster that is licensed in the state they operate in is a step in the right direction. And, since your money is at stake, money needed to fix every bit of damage, it only makes sense to use Statewide Adjustment.
